MAIL CLERK SHORTAGE ON WESTERN RAILROADS

There is a shortage of railway mail clerks in Colorado, a shortage that Uncle Sam at the present time seems mable to supply. A special civil service examination for mail clerks was held in January of this year, but the supply did not seem to be ademate to the demand.

A second special examination was called at which one of the largest classes on record was examined-65 in all.

Secretary Campbell of the civil service commission, stated in Denver that the shortage in the Rocky mountain region was due to the risks taken on intermountain railroads that clerks, as a rule, did not care to enauger their lives when they could receive he same money for the same work in the eastern states.

The eligible list has been exhause ed for some time, due in a large measure to the fact that when the eligibles were sought to go on runs they could not be located.
